Retraction notice: Efficacy and safety of alofropodect in acute schizophrenia

Abstract

This article is being retracted due to data irregularities identified during post-publication regulatory review. An unresolved discrepancy was discovered in the patient randomization records for the 40 mg treatment arm, with 7 enrolled participants lacking proper documentation of randomization sequence verification. The investigators were unable to provide complete source data supporting the randomization integrity upon request. While the safety profile described remains consistent with clinical observations, the efficacy conclusions cannot be definitively verified. A replication study with enhanced randomization controls is warranted.
